Washington, D.C. (August 28, 2017) — The Coalition of Services Industries (CSI) is pleased to announce the launch of its new website today, unveiling a modern platform for resources and tools on services trade and investment. With this renovation, CSI continues to elevate its role as the main hub for education and advocacy on behalf of U.S. services industries.

“CSI is the leading organization representing American services providers, and the webpage further represents our role as the central hub for information on the U.S. services economy,” said CSI President Christine Bliss. “Our updated site will help tell the positive services story in the United States and around the globe.”

While updates continue to be made to enhance the user experience, the website provides updated content with a broader focus on information-sharing and the latest news and activity related to services. CSI looks forward to continuing to expand functionality in the coming months.

###

The Coalition of Services Industries (CSI) represents the interests of the dynamic American service economy, which employs over 75% of the workforce and generates 80% of national economic output. Since 1982, CSI has created greater public awareness of the major role services play in the U.S. economy, and it has shaped domestic and international economic policies on behalf of the services sector. The broad range of the U.S. service economy is reflected in CSI's membership, which includes major international companies from the banking, insurance, telecommunications, information technology, logistics and express delivery, audiovisual, retail, and other service industries. CSI members conduct business in all 50 states and in more than 100 countries.
